The Chinese New Year otherwise known as the Lunar New Year falls on the new moon each year between the 21st January and 20 February.

This is a time of celebration for families to come together to feast, give gifts and watch fireworks over a 15 day long holiday. Celebrations last from the new moon to the full moon.

The Chinese calendar follows a 12 year cycle with each year related to one of twelve creatures. Here are the dates and associated creatures for the next six years.

2018, Friday 16 February – Dog

2019, Tuesday 5 February – Pig

2020, Saturday 25 January – Rat

2021, Friday 12 February – Ox

2022, Tuesday 1 February – Tiger

2023, Sunday 22 January 2023 – Rabbit
